1. Sarah – The Devout Christian: Sarah believes wholeheartedly that Jesus is the Son of God, sent to Earth to save humanity from sin. To her, Jesus is not just a historical figure or a religious symbol but a living presence in her life, guiding her actions and giving her strength in times of need.
2. Ahmed – The Faithful Muslim: Ahmed reveres Jesus as a great prophet and messenger of Allah, but he firmly believes in the oneness of God and rejects the idea of Jesus being divine. He sees Jesus as a figure of utmost respect and importance in Islamic tradition, but not as a deity.
3. Lakshmi – The Hindu Believer: Lakshmi sees Jesus as one of the many manifestations of the divine in Hinduism. To her, Jesus is a revered spiritual teacher and avatar of God, alongside other deities like Vishnu and Shiva. She respects Jesus as a divine figure but within the context of her broader religious beliefs.

4. Michael – The Cultural Christian: Michael identifies as Christian by culture and tradition rather than by strong religious conviction. He may attend church on holidays and participate in Christian rituals, but his faith is more about tradition and community than personal belief in Jesus as the Son of God.
5. Elena – The Atheist: Elena rejects the notion of any divine beings, including Jesus. To her, Jesus is a historical figure whose teachings and actions have had a significant impact on human history, but she sees no evidence to support the belief in his divinity or existence as a deity.
6. Ravi – The Spiritual Seeker: Ravi approaches Jesus with an open mind, seeking wisdom and inspiration from various religious traditions. He sees Jesus as a profound spiritual teacher whose teachings resonate deeply with him, regardless of the specific religious labels attached to him. Ravi finds value in the moral and ethical teachings attributed to Jesus, viewing him as a guide on his personal journey towards enlightenment and inner peace.
7. Shalo – “.....”: Jesus serves as the cornerstone of their existence. While acknowledging the Bible’s portrayal of Jesus as both human and divine, societal influences distance from religious concepts, yet their faith in God persists in a non-religious context. Their broad understanding leads them to entertain the notion of Jesus as even extraterrestrial. Regardless of these diverse perspectives, Shalo regards Jesus as encompassing various roles—God, human, alien, messenger, father, friend, and even adversary—while also being a guide and focal point of their spiritual journey, despite occasional detachment.
